DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES AND MEASURES.

A strict construction of the Constitution, and no assumption of doubtful powers.

A Diplomacy asking for nothing but what is clearly right and submitting to nothing wrong. No connexion between the government and banks. An ad valorem revenue tariff. No public debt, either by the General Government or by the States, except for objects of urgent necessity No assumption by the General Government of the debts of the States, either directly or indirectly, by a distribution of the proceeds of the public lands.

No extensive system of Internal Improvement by the General Government or by the States.

A constitutional barrier against improvident State louns. The honest payment of our debts and the sacred preservation of the public faith. A gradual return from a paper credit system. No grants of exclusive charters and privileges by special legislation to banks.

No swindling corporations. No connexion between Church and State. A preference for Democrats over Whigs for every Acquiescence in the rule of the majority in all cases of party discipline.

No proscription for honest opinions. Fostering aid to public education. A "progressive" reformation of all abuses.

Love and Law.

TO A FAITHLESS MARY. The lines below were written by a young Lawyer of Massachusetts, who was jilted. The wit will be appreciated by a great part of the profession. It is a amount due from the respective mortgagors, will be offered for curious fact that he subsequently died of a broken the Revised Statutes of 1843; the said tracts, parcels, or lots of heart, notwithstanding the brave show of levity in and having been mortgaged to the State to secure the payment of this address to his faithless mistress. Say Mary, canst thou sympathize With one whose heart is bleeding-Compelled to wake from love's young dream And take to special pleading.

> For since I lost my suit with you, I care not now a fraction About these tiresome suits at Law-These senseless forms of action. But in my lonely chamber oft,

When clients leave me leisure, In misery o'er departed joys I find a mournful pleasure. How well I know the spot where first

I saw that form etherial-But ah! in transitory things, And reading Archbold's practice now,

I scarce believe 'tis true, That I could set my heart upon An arch-bold girl like you. But then that bright blue eye sent forth

A most unerring dart, Which, like a special capias, made A prisoner of my beart. And in the weakness of my heart,

One tatal long vacation, I gave a pledge to prosecute, And filed my declaration. At first your taking time to plead, Gave hope of my felicity-The doubtful negative you spoke,

Seemed bad for its duplicity.

And then your blush, so clearly seemed To pardon my transgression, I thought I was about to snap A judgment by confession.

But soon I learned (most fatal truth,) How rashly I had counted-For non-assumpsit was the plea To which it all amounted. Deceitful maid, another swain

Was then beloved by thee-The preference you gave to him Was fraudulent to me.

Ah! when we love (so Shakspeare says,) Bad luck is sure to have us-The course of true love never ran Without some special traverse. Sav, what inducement could you have To act so base a part? Without this -that you smiled on me, I ne'er had lost my heart.

My rival I was doomed to view, A husband's rights assert; And now 'tis wrong to think of you, For you're a femme covert.

When late I saw your son and heir, Twas wormwood for a lover-For then the plea of infancy My heart could not get over.

I kissed the little brat, and said Much happiness I wish you, But oh! I felt it was to me An immaterial issue.

Mary, adieu! I'll write no more, Nor pen pathetic ditties: My pleading was of no avail, And so I'll take to Chitty's.
